Addendum Sheet

G-VI-A-034 St. Matthew's Episcopal Church Oakland Garrett County Preparer: Helen P. Ross Date Prepared: March 27, 1997

Although the original church building of 1868 remains relatively unchanged, hyphenated on its west elevation is a rather large, out of character two-story addition. Dating from the early or mid-1970's, the massive facade gable-roofed wing is made of a stretcher brick bond and has slender paired window units which are recessed in its western wall plane. Both buildings are covered with asphalt roof shingles.

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church is a long and narrow rectangular block with a rather steep roof. Built of rusticated st_ones about the size of cinder blocks (darkened with age and soot), the nave is 5 bays divided by simple exterior buttresses, each bay having one stained glass filled lancet. These are the only windows except for a circular stained glass window just below the eaves on the 'east' and west' ends. There is also no articulated chancel as such, but there is a small stone entrance porch with peaked roof and pointed arch doorway. At the 'southwest' corner of the church there is a simple buttressed octagonal tower with two stages of masonry (the 2nd stage has lancets on three sides), while the 3rd stage is an octagonal wood belfry with louvred lancets on all This is topped by a shingled spire and a cross. The church is approached up seven new concrete steps which break through a stone retaining wall.

The interior of St. Matthew's is as simple as the exterior. The walls are white stucco with no decoration save three lamps hanging from the ceiling. There is a gallery across the rear bay. Although a simple, unrelieved box, the chancel—altar area is set off by low steps; the choir seats further accentuate the chancel by being set 'in choir'. Furniture is recent (1966), as is wainscoating, carpeting and walls.

St. Matthew's was built in 1868 by John W. Garrett as a memorial to his brother Henry, and was called the Garrett Memorial Church, becoming a Presbyterian church officially in 1903. In 1936 the Episcopal Church began using the building and in 1962 the Baltimore Presbytery deeded the building to St. Matthew's, who then restored the church in 1966 when it was consecrated by Bishop Doll. [information from plaque in the church].

Despite the church's simplicity (when compared to other Episcopal churches of the period), the exterior is not unattractive, and with its spire, it occupies an important site in the center of Oakland. Associated with the family that opened up the county as a summer resort, this must be one of the older buildings in Oakland. The so-called 'Church of the Presidents', this is where Presidents Grant, Harrison, and Cleveland worshipped, which would make the church a monument.
